

Guidelines for Productivityist Guest Posts

Thank you for your interest in sharing your insight with our audience. Here are the guidelines to follow in order for your post to be considered:

What we look for:

- Length between 300 – 1000 words
- Original ideas and approaches
- Applicable to personal and professional productivity
- Relevant to a general audience (not geared towards a specific group)
 - We don't accept posts specifically geared towards corporations, offices, students, parents, writers, etc.
- Text-based posts. Please do not submit photos, videos, infographics, etc.

No product or app reviews. We do not accept anything that looks like a sponsored post.

Do not write about the following topics (unless it adds a new and/or valuable perspective to the conversation):

- Getting Things Done
- Pomodoro
- Time Management
- Habits
- Routines

Examples for something interesting that WOULD fit:

- Using The Pomodoro Method In Reverse
- The Art of Efficient Thinking
- How To Be Productive After Vacation
- Why I'm Writing Two Books at Once (And How I'm Doing It)

Other requirements:

- A bio with up to two links and up to 50 words
- Email to info@productivityist.com as a Word document or Google doc.
- No affiliate links (unless approved by Productivityist)

Before you submit:

- Visit our blog to check out previous posts and formatting

Please note that, due to the high number of submissions, we will only respond to those we feel would be a good fit. We look forward to hearing your ideas!